The Chevrolet Corvette C2 was introduced in the summer of 1962 as the second generation of the Corvette under the name Sting Ray. This model is equipped with the small block with a displacement of 5.4 liters and 300 hp. Compared to the later 6.4 liter "big block" engine, this model is significantly more lively, more fuel-efficient and heat-resistant.

Originally delivered in the USA, this beautiful and original Corvette found its way to Germany 22 years ago. Between 2002 and 2011, the vehicle was maintained and driven by a total of 2 owners before the current owner took over and registered the car in 2011. In 2021, an appraisal was carried out, which attested that the Sting Ray was in good condition. This Corvette is ready for immediate use.
