“The K3 Magnette is regarded in the history books as the most famous and successful of all record-breaking MGs. With only 33 examples produced between 1933 and 1934, this car gave the brand an incredible boost and firmly established MG at the forefront of global motorsports and record-breaking.” – Richard Monk, The MG Collection.

Over the years, numerous replicas of the K3 have been produced. The model offered here comes from the late Peter Gregory, a renowned expert in this highly specialized field, from whom it was acquired in April 1999. The MG has seen very little use since its completion. The vehicle is, of course, equipped with a supercharger.

Other notable features include an ENV manual transmission, two aerodynamic windshields, dashboard-mounted gauges, André shock absorbers, a leather strap on the hood, and a spare tire on the driver's side. The interior is lined with black leather, while a Jaeger tachometer dominates the dashboard alongside the standard instrument cluster. The vehicle sits on four chrome-plated spoke wheels secured with knock-off spinners. There are two fuel caps on the trunk lid.
