This Porsche Turbo Coupé was delivered with the country code C00 and German registration documents and then brought to Spain. Technical inspection reports from the Canary Islands are available. In 2014, the vehicle found its way back to Germany. The Turbo underwent extensive restoration until 2020, with over €100,000 invested. Most of the invoices were issued by the Porsche Center in Düsseldorf. Thanks to a larger Porsche 964 Turbo turbocharger, this coupé has a power increase to approx. 330 hp. The original turbocharger is available and will be delivered with the vehicle. Internally ventilated disc brakes were also installed. The transmission has been given a sportier tuning. In 2018, the interior was completely renovated, so that the Porsche can be described as being in mint condition overall.

A full folder of invoices, expert reports, checkbook, MOT reports, etc. documents the extensive history and the work that has been carried out. A Classic Data valuation report from 2024 certifies this Porsche as being in above-average overall condition with a grade of 2+ and a vehicle value of €189,000.
