

Volkswagen

T1 Sundial Camper

First Registration:	01.10.1964	Capacity:	1.584 ccm
Mileage:	57.959 km	Color:	Velvet Green/Pearl White
Output:	37 KW/50 HP	Interior:	Beige

- Sundial camping vehicle conversion
- Completely restored in Germany between 2018 and 2019
- Engine upgraded to 80 hp, Historic license plate
- Many modifications, such as disc brakes and steering

This Volkswagen T1 Camper was built at the Volkswagen factory in Hanover. The T1 box van was delivered new to the USA, where it was converted into a camping vehicle by the Sundial company. In 2001, the VW Camper was sold to Ireland, and in 2013, the vehicle returned to Germany. In the Hanover area, the car was comprehensively restored to a very high standard by a specialist company between 2018 and 2019. No expense or effort was spared in the pursuit of perfection. The bodywork was beautifully restored, the interior completely renewed, and all mechanical components overhauled. During the restoration, the original 1600cc engine was optimized and now delivers approx. 80 hp. In line with this, technical upgrades were installed to match the additional power and speed potential. The steering gear was improved and replaced with rack and pinion steering. Disc brakes were fitted to the front axle for additional braking power and safety. This T1 Bulli Camper drives and handles perfectly, offering much more driving pleasure! This vehicle has a charming appearance, pep, and the necessary safety improvements, immediately arousing sympathy in passersby. This unique vehicle has an extensive history file. A unique opportunity to purchase an excellently restored/looking/driving Volkswagen T1 Camper.